

Dementia & Bronchitis

Nancy Olsen, R.N.—Ohio, August 2001

I have been prescribing jiaogulan to 2 geriatric patients of mine. The first patient, a man, has Parkinson's. Jiaogulan has helped him verbalize a lot more. He is walking more. He is more able to feed himself. The second patient, a lady, has little bit of senile dementia, and has been having anger and frustration problems. She seems to be a lot calmer and more active and more confident and feels better from taking jiaogulan.

As for myself, I have had chronic bronchitis since 6 months old. I have had 2 attacks every year since then. Since taking jiaogulan I've had nothing except clear lungs.
